Tour highlights

This 15-day tour combines the mountain lakes and nomad life of Kyrgyzstan with the great Silk Road cities of Uzbekistan. After a tour of the lively Kyrgyz capital Bishkek you visit the 11th-century Burana Tower, drive along the north shore of Issyk-Kul to Karakol and continue past the red cliffs of Jeti-Oguz and an eagle hunting demonstration in Bokonbaevo to Kochkor, known for its felt carpets.

At Song-Kol Lake (3,016 m) you spend a night in a traditional yurt camp, meet friendly Kyrgyz herders and enjoy their hospitality with fresh airan and kymys. The road back to Bishkek crosses the Suusamyr Valley and the Too-Ashuu Pass, and a short flight takes you to Osh and its sacred Sulaiman-Too mountain.

Crossing into Uzbekistan, the Fergana Valley shows you the silk workshops of Margilan, the ceramic masters of Rishtan and the khans' palace in Kokand. From Tashkent trains take you to Samarkand and Bukhara, and a long drive across the Kyzyl-Kum Desert brings you to Khiva, a walled old town like an open-air museum, before a short flight back to Tashkent – a perfect mix of breathtaking landscapes, authentic encounters and timeless cultural treasures.

Difficulty: Easy. Mostly sightseeing and city walks at an easy pace. One night in a yurt camp at Song-Kol Lake (3,016 m, 4 people per yurt), the Too-Ashuu Pass (3,586 m) by road, and long driving days of 405 km (Bishkek–Karakol), 320 km (Song-Kol–Bishkek) and 460 km (Bukhara–Khiva across the desert).
